HELP BUILD A SUSTAINABLE FUTURE AND POSITIVELY IMPACT YOUR BOTTOM LINE

Global regulations and greater consumer awareness has driven the entire textile and garment industry towards more sustainable manufacturing processes.

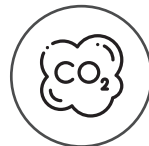

Sustainability is at the heart of ITMA where the entire ecosystem work together to find sustainable innovation, create new products and spark robust discussions and inspirations.

A Global Challenge – textile, clothing and fashion is one of the most unsustainable industries in the world:

5 trillion

litres of water used per year for dyeing
processes
TEXTILE EXCHANGE

1.2 billion

tonnes of CO2 emitted from textiles production
ELLEN MACARTHUR FOUNDATION

50%

increase in water usage by 2030
GFA & BCG

26%

contribution to global carbon emission

- 14.7 Accessories for equipment for recycling, waste reduction and pollution prevention

If you do, you should exhibit in the recycling, waste reduction, and pollution prevention sector at ITMA 2023.

“The textile industry is increasing its awareness and need for sustainable manufacturing solutions. This augurs well for us and we have been participating in ITMA since 2015. At ITMA 2019, we had a live demonstration of our recycling technology which drew a lot of interest among visitors. Customers looking to recycle their plastic wastes were glad that they could witness first-hand the capabilities of our technology.”

Manfred Dobersberger, Managing Director & Partner, PureLoop GesmbH

The Sustainable Textile & Garment Manufacturing in the Circular Economy stream at the Speakers Platform was a focal point for visitors looking for sustainable inspiration in 2019.

As a trusted end-to-end supply chain organisation in the textile/apparel industry, AAPN members appreciate the importance of sustainability and environmental stewardship. For this reason, ITMA features prominently on the calendar of must-visit shows. ITMA not only provides sourcing opportunities for the entire value chain, but it also showcases sustainable manufacturing solutions. We were glad to have brought a delegation to ITMA 2019 as it was an extremely rewarding experience.
